A Scientific Triumph! TRUEHEDGE COLUMNBERRY

U. S. Plant Patent No. 110

← Actual picture of 2-yr., 18-inch branches showing unique branchlet character. Note that every tiny, weak lateral is perfectly erect resisting, and rust-immune. Will displace tender bygone hedging. Forms individual "Accent Spires" and trimmed shapes resembling boxwood.

The true variety, "Truehedge Columnberry," is protected by U. S. Plant Patent No. 110, owned by The Cole Nursery Company. Every genuine plant bears our special stained label marked with Name, Patent Notice, and Number.

For immediate effect, plant small sizes 10 inches apart; large sizes 12 inches apart. Small grades make a regular "Box Edging" immediately when planted.

Larger grades make finished sizable hedges immediately.

Prices for Truehedge Columnberry

	Each	5	25
9 to 12 in.	$0.40	$1.50	$6.25
12 to 15 in.	50	2.00	8.75
15 to 18 in.	60	2.50	11.25
1 1/2 to 2 ft.	80	3.50	15.00
2 to 2 1/2 ft.	1.00	4.50	20.00

Use the larger grades if you wish to develop trimmed sentinels, boxes, spires, and accent specimens.

Patented and introduced by The Cole Nursery Company in the fall of 1934, this "Most Sensational Plant Introduction of the Decade" has already been purchased in an amount exceeding 100,000 plants by plant-lovers who have long been eagerly seeking a novelty that accomplishes just the thing in landscape architecture that "Truehedge" does.

Truehedge Columnberry is a sensational new form of Barberry that will, without doubt, displace the Common Japanese Barberry as a hedge plant.

Rightly termed by many "The Ready-Made Hedge" and "The Spire Shrub." Practically no trimming is necessary. Saves you 2 to 3 years' work and waiting for hedge effect. Truehedge is cheaper in the long run, far superior in beauty, has better foliage, is perfectly hardy, drought-

COLE'S Evergreens

Evergreens give a feeling of richness to the home landscape. This is especially true during the winter months when the ground is covered with snow and when other shrubs and trees have lost their foliage. Evergreens are so very definite in their habit, color, and texture that every specimen counts very distinctly. Therefore, they should be selected and planted with great care, at the same time being sure to secure plants that have been well grown in the nursery. We are constantly root-pruning, transplanting, shearing, and spraying our large acreage of Evergreens. We have given much study, over a period of fifty years, to the proper growing of Evergreens so that you may be assured of pleasing success. Being unable to list all of our many varieties and sizes in this Folder, we invite you to inspect our blocks of perhaps a million Evergreens, or visit any of our Sales Gardens where many of these varieties are on display. Here you will see plants of every description and size from the small trailing Juniper to the lofty Pine—trees to fit into difficult landscape schemes and for other special purposes. Our Evergreens are dug with liberal balls of earth about the roots and are securely wrapped with burlap. Most of these trees may be successfully transplanted every month of the year.
